From the "Harp of the Birch Woods," a volume of Poems, by a Lady, lately published at Montrose, Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania.

O'er foggy fens we goblins ride,

And flit around the moon-faded taper,

Alluring wilder'd wights aside,

Led by the dim and lambent vapour.

Through tufted rushes, sedge and reeds,

Through ponds of slime and watery meads;

And when they get

Their hosen wet,

Ho! ho! we cry,

And away we lie,

Laughing aloud right lustily.

The heavy night mare we bestride,

On the sick man's bosom sitting,

With frightful eyes and visage wide,

When first his slumbers soft are knitting;

He seems on joyous journey gone,

But labouring gets no footsteps on,

Then tottering starts,

As sleep departs,

Ho! ho! we cry,

And away we lie,

Laughing aloud right lustily.

In our wicked crew careers,

On Death's pale horse on arrows flying,

Quaff the sorrowing virgin's tears,

Smile o'er the dead and mock the dying.

At kings and pompous fools we laugh,

Whose lives are scattered cheap as chaff.

And when the rear

Of havoc's o'er,

Ho! ho! we cry,

And away we lie,

Laughing aloud right lustily.

From the Delaware Watchman, of June 17.

Extract of a letter from Philadelphia, dated June 6.

"A curious circumstance happened here, which I will relate for your amusement. The story is told as follows:—A person in Maryland had discovered that his runaway slave was in Philadelphia. He gave a power of attorney to a person in or near Wilmington to take him up and bring him out of Pennsylvania, for which he was to have a handsome reward. This person took another with him as a witness—neither of them knew the man. They however frequented the oyster cellars and were familiar with the blacks till they found a man that knew the runaway, and who for a small bribe pointed him out to them. On this, the witness was him out in order to get a warrant to remove him out of the state. They did not take him immediately, but watched his haunts and waited a proper time when they might get him off without much trouble from the friends of the blacks.

Sam, the runaway, discovered that these two men were watching him, and he watched them as well. One evening just at dusk, when they thought the most proper time, as Sam was seeing his last stick of wood, with his eyes on the man across the street, they began to cross quietly over to him. Sam was not to be taken, so he down saw and flew, the men pursued; the street at the time pretty clear of people. Sam gained considerably, and when he had got about two squares he took up an alley. At the mouth of this alley another black was standing. It instantly occurred to him (without knowing Sam or any of the circumstances) that he would have some fun. He turned out and ran down street as hard as he could. The pursuers of poor Sam followed on, believing it was the same man, but could not catch him. He however after running two or three squares let them come up, when being vexed with the chase he had given them, pite like, they knocked him down for not heaving too sooner, and hurried him away to a justice, with whom they had previously concerted their plans. The witness proved that he was the slave of the person that had given the power of attorney; and now the fun began. The justice asked the black man (whose name happened to be Sam also, and who turned out to be a very shrewd fellow, but said nothing all the time) if he had any thing to say why he should not grant a warrant to the men to take him to his state?

"Yes, master, I say something—me run quiet along the street, disturb nobody. These men run after me hard he can, holla me stop; me stop when I please—they come up and knock me down—now master I demand states warrant for these men for assault and battery and false prison." "Why Sam, you seem to know law, and talk as if you were a free man." "I am a free man, master, I think these men not citizen of the United States, and therefore cannot cognize—they may be English, with a vessel I down the river to put poor negro in free man." "I born in this city, and when I live with master Boney, I make fire in the office and sweep it—then the young gentlemen learn me law; one say if I make so much dust he will assanara me—that I think is whip me with cat nine tails. Another time one say if I make such a smoke he will assanara me—that I think is score my face with a sharp penknife, like they do negro in Guinea to make it look pretty. Another time one threaten to debanta non me—that I think is cut off my head."

The justice looked at the men and the men at the justice, and they all looked at each other.

"Master I can't do that; I must not be knocked down and take prison for nothing. I wish master would send summons for master Boney to prove me free and tell me what to do." "Why, Sam, the men are willing to make it up with you—what will you take, and have no more trouble?" "Why, I think if master was on jury he would give me two or three hundred dollars for knock down in highway, and take prison, without any cause, but I will take 50 dollars." "That's too much, Sam." "No master, I can't take no less, without Mr. Boney's advice—Master, please send summons for Mr. Boney. The men offered 30 dollars. Sam said 'no; I wish master send Mr. Boney.' By this time people began to collect round the office—the men got uneasy and paid the 50 dollars.—They never discovered the trick at the end of the alley, and Sam went off laughing.

European Intelligence.

The following are extracts from London papers received by the packet ship London, Capt. Chandler, arrived at New York.

The news that Nina has succeeded in gaining the rear of Marshal Marmora, is confirmed. This the French Ultra call retreating; but when the General succeeds in effecting what his adversary vainly endeavours to prevent, it has very much the appearance of an advance.

The Pilot announces the communications on the road from Lun to Vitoria, having need of protection, several detachments of troops have been withdrawn from the army besieging St. Sebastian, for that service.

Eighty-four thousand fish were caught on Wednesday last, on the south side of Long Island, at one haul, by a seine belonging to Saggs in Bridgehampton, this is the greatest haul ever known to have been made in the surf; the fish are of the kind called Shippages or Bunkers, and are used as a manure. It is said they are preferable to ashes for any crop that can be taken from the ground.—Boston Galaxy.

Bleeding at the Nose.—People, and children particularly, of sanguine habits, frequently bleed at the nose. A cold key laid to the back, or washing the face with water, has sometimes been resorted to, as a remedy. These applications, however, having frequently failed, we find in Lupton's "Notable Things," the following very fine and effectual remedy:

"You shall stay the bleeding of the nose, if you write with the same blood, on the forehead of the party that bleeds, these words following:—Consummatus est—a thing proved with many."

ENGLISH POETS.—Thomas Moore has just finished his Fables of Congress, and a new edition of the Love of Angela, and is on the point of returning to his cottage in Wiltshire. Wordsworth is on a tour in Holland. Southey is expected very shortly in London, with a new poem, the hero of which is a Quaker. Rogers has prepared a new edition of his poem on Italy, which was published anonymously last year. Coleridge still continues to rusticate under the kind and hospitable mansion of his friend at Highgate. Charles Lamb perambulates between his snug little villa at Dalston and the India House—whilst the Great Unknown remains alternately at Abbotford, and at his residence, in Edinburgh, contemplating another new novel, which has been for some time announced as being nearly ready for publication.—Morn. Chron.

ALEXANDER, THE PROPHESED!
Whether as a trick of state, or the result of madness, it appears that the Russian Czar imagines himself to be named in the book of "Revelations." A private letter from Paris says:

"It is confidently reported that Alexander is deeply touched in the brain. The only book he reads at present is the Apocalypse, in which he thinks he has discovered that he is destined to be the conqueror of Spain, and the destroyer of the hydra of liberalism in Europe; after which a millennium is to commence, during which his family is to reign in the plenitude of despotism for a thousand years; and he talks confidently of a throne to the age of a hundred himself. It appears almost ridiculous to write down seriously such absurdities; but as assured that they come from Pozi di Borgo's hotel, who is so convinced of the crack in his master's brain, that he would willingly quit the Russian service for any thing approaching to an equivalent in a more civilized and secure quarter of Europe."

Pozi di Borgo may go where he likes; he cannot prevent the accomplishment of the prophecy: "Verily, Verily, I say unto you, that the Man of the North, who has arisen from Lilliput, shall be one day very great." See the "Chinese Spy," in which the conquests of these Northern men are predicted to extend somewhat further than the tory party in Britain would wish to see verified. It is there said, that the Colmucs and Tartars shall erect their huts on the smoking ruins of London! The most direct and effectual way to prevent the accomplishment of this prophecy, is to meet and resist the march of these barbarians over the sunny and civilized countries of Europe—to stop this mad, modern Alexander—this second Jupiter tonans, and "Check his thunder in mid-volley."

Weekly Compendium.
Albert Gallatin, Esq. American Ambassador at the Court of France, has arrived at New York. The price of Wheat in the western parts of N. York has risen to one dollar per bushel. The Albany papers state, for the benefit of all sturdy rogues and beggars, that a Stepping Mill is about to be erected in that city.

Mr. Bagly, a drover, was lately robbed of $3000, near Stoytown, Pa. He was fired at by two persons who lay in ambush—they rushed upon him, and while he was robbed by one fellow the other robbed his saddle bags.

It is said that there is not a vessel "slaving" on the coast of Africa under the American flag, and that the slave trade is on the decline.

Warning to Sabbath breakers.—On Sunday, the 8th inst. Mr. William Wilson, of Vernon, N. J. went out in the morning to catch some fish, and while standing on the edge of the creek, engaged in fishing, his feet slipped and he fell into the water. Before assistance could be procured, his spirit was before the bar of his God. He has left a wife and five children.—Goshen Post.

A runaway black man, was lately shot at and killed in South Carolina, by a negro driver, who is said to have received information that he had committed a highway robbery. A jury was called to try the negro driver—and they merely reported that he had received such information.

Some of the physicians of South Carolina have given it as their opinion, that the noxious weed called Dog Fennel, which grows spontaneously, generates disease. It is recommended that farmers be compelled to pull it up before it runs to seed.

Vanity of Authors.—The inscription under BORLEAU's portrait, in which he is foolishly preferred to Horace and Juvenal, (from whom he stole his best satire) is unfortunately known to have been written by himself!

Commerce of Lake Erie.—There were lying in Buffalo Harbor, last Saturday week, sixteen vessels, all recently arrived, from different ports up the Lake, each having brought nearly or quite an entire cargo of the products of the country.

The Ontario Repository states that no less than 2000 panes of glass were broken in the town of Bristol, during the late storm of thunder, lightning and hail. Grain and grass were much injured. The Collector of Taxes of Abbeville S. C. was robbed near that place on the 14th inst. of $7000. The Archbishop of Mexico has arrived at Havre, from Havana.

At no former period have the accommodations for visitors at Saratoga, been so great as they are at present. The number of strangers now at the Springs is, between two and three hundred.

Yellow Fever at Quarantine.—Mr. Joseph Silva, who had been at work on board the brig Emeline from St. Jago de Cuba, died on Sunday morning of Yellow Fever. One of the seamen has sickened since the arrival of the brig.

There are in the Free Will Baptist connection in the United States, 170 ordained ministers, 50 licentiates and 15,000 members.

There is a story going about that Dr. Mitchell has in his possession the identical purse of the celebrated Rob Roy. We assure our readers, says the Charleston City Gazette, there is nothing in it.

Patents.—More than 3000 patents have been granted since 1790. Among which have been 80 for improvements on the steam engine and on steam boats; more than 100 for manufacturing nails; from 60 to 70 for washing machines; 60 for pumps—50 for churns. There are now sixty patents for stoves constructed on different principles.

Com. Daniels of the Colombian Navy has arrived at Baltimore from Lagaira.

Charles Louis Napoleon Achille Murat, the son of the late king of Naples, reported himself on Saturday last to the clerk of the Marine Court at New-York, as an incipient step towards naturalization. He was born at Paris, and is now 22 years of age.

Joseph Haslett, Esq. Governor of Delaware, died at his seat near Millford, on Friday last. He is the fourth Governor of Delaware who has died within a few years. Charles Thomas, Esq. the Speaker of the Senate, on whom the duties of Governor now devolve, lies dangerously ill.

The U. S. frigate Constitution and sloop of war Ontario, were left at Gibraltar on the 25th of April. The night previous to the arrival of the Constitution, she was run foul of by a British schooner, which went down immediately, but all her hands were saved and taken on board the frigate, except the captain.

The population of the State of New Jersey, is 277,575, of which 7537 are slaves. New York now contains 20,000 dwelling-houses, and 130,000 inhabitants. 13 millions of dollars is yearly expended by its citizens for food.

At Annapolis, a well-digger fell 40 feet head foremost to the bottom of a well, without being in the least hurt. The experiment is, however, too dangerous to be repeated.

The Gunpowder Plot.—Is commemorated by the crier of London, who on the night before the anniversary, marches through the streets, repeating the following sublimely awful, stupendous and overawing couplet:

"This is the night, I speak it with great sorrow,
When we were all to be blown up to-morrow."

Murder.—Mrs. McKay a young woman of reputable character, and the wife of a master shoemaker in St. Anne street, was murdered on Saturday in open day, a short time after noon, in a ditch between the walls of the fortification, in the rear of the esplanade. The body was discovered through accident by a corporal of sappers and miners, shockingly mutilated, the skull having been pierced by four bayonet wounds.—Quebec Gaz.

Mr. Von Niebuhm, a celebrated German scholar, was once a clerk in the Bank of Copenhagen, in that capacity he gave proof of the miraculous power of his memory by restoring from recollection alone, the whole contents of a leaf in a bank ledger which had been lost by fraud or accident.

Indian Trial and Execution.—On Monday last, an Indian in this place, was stabbed by another, the friends present decided on the merits of the case—the accused was found guilty, sentenced, executed, and interred on the spot. The whole transaction took place in less than fifty minutes.—Baton Rouge Gaz.

LATEST FROM SPAIN.
The schooner Panopea, Doane, 42 days from Cadiz, arrived at this port last evening; and a mercantile friend has favored us with Cadiz papers of the 13th, and Seville to the 11th of May, inclusive. These dates are later by several days than have before been received.

The French troops were within 15 leagues of Madrid, on a quick march for that city—and martial law was proclaimed at Cadiz about the 9th May, in which place every thing remained inactive. A vessel has also arrived at Salem, which sailed from Cadiz at the same time, and the captain of which reports, that the king and family, and officers of government were at St. Lucar; and that an English brig had arrived at Cadiz, from England, via Valencia, having landed at the latter place 40 French officers, to join the Spanish forces against their invaders.

MARRIED.
On Thursday evening, 19th inst. by the Rev. Philip Mayer, Mr. LAWRENCE WELLS, to Miss JANE CREASE, daughter of Mr. William G. Crease, all of this city.

On Thursday evening, 19th inst. by the Rev. George C. Potts, Mr. AARON ROSS, to Miss ESTHER THOMAS, both of this city.

On Sunday evening, the 23d inst. by the Rev. Dr. Charles J. Demma, Major JOHN PEIFFER, to the amiable and accomplished Miss HANNAH FAUERHOUK, daughter of Henry Fauerhouk, both of the Northern Liberties.

On Thursday evening last, by the Rev. Dr. Staughton, Mr. HENRY ERWIN, to Miss REBECCA A. WARNER, both of this city.

On the 15th inst. by the Rev. J. Potts, Mr. DANIEL MYNICK, of this city, to Miss ANN C. WOODCOCK, of Wilmington, Del.

DIED.
Last evening, in the 20th year of his age, WILLIAM FISHER. His friends and acquaintances, and the friends of the family, are particularly invited to attend his funeral from the dwelling of his mother, back of No. 32 Race, between Front and Second streets, to-morrow afternoon, at five o'clock.

Navigation, Lunar Observations, AND THE USE OF THE SEXTANT AND QUADRANT. Together with the mode of ascertaining, with errors, the Longitude by Chronometer and rating them, with celestial practice, the same as at Sea, ranging by THOMAS ARNOLD, No. 305, SOUTH FRONT STREET, six doors below South Street.—He confidently trusts that thirty years experience as a navigator, at sea, twenty of which in the practical use of Lunar Observations, have rendered him fully competent to teach the above.

A soldier in camp at Plattsburgh, named Samuel N. Hauce, shot himself, on the 12th inst. He very deliberately purchased a small quantity of powder, borrowed a pistol, cut down a musket ball to suit it, and went into one of the unoccupied barracks, and discharged the contents thro' his body just above the heart.

The Newburyport Herald, relates some additional particulars relative to the explosion of Gun Powder, at Dover, (N. H.) After the boys had set fire to the powder on the ground which communicated to the straw in the wagon, on which the powder, to the amount of 636 wt. was loaded, they ran until they were stopped by some workmen from Mr. Elia's hatter's shop. These men were in the act of loosing the horses from the wagon, when the powder exploded. The wagon was blown to atoms—two men, named Kimball and Kelley, were so severely wounded that they died on the succeeding night, and a third is not expected to recover from his wounds.

Tornado.—A violent storm of thunder and lightning, hail and wind, passed over Haverhill, Bradford, and Boxford, Mass. on Wednesday week.—At Haverhill, the Baptist meeting-house was struck, but not materially injured. At Boxford two barns were blown down and demolished, and the fields of grain sustained some damage. Capt. Symonds, a man aged about 65, living in the west parish of Bradford, was in the field hoeing corn, when he was struck with lightning and instantly killed—the handle of his hoe was shivered to pieces, but the skin of the deceased was no where broken. Several of the family in the house, but a few rods distant, was also struck down by the same flash, and stunned but soon recovered. In the west parish of Bradford, the lightning struck a poplar tree, standing about a rod from the house of Captain Phineas Hardy, and was conducted by a root of the tree, under the surface of the ground, into the cellar, cutting the hoops from a cider cask, and passed off without further injury, being unperceived at the time by those in the house. The rain fell in copious showers and would have been a welcome visitant, unaccompanied by its terrible companions. So says the Newburyport Herald.
